Capstone certification description
The Teaching as a Profession capstone assesses candidates' knowledge of the teaching profession and their ability to apply effective practices in education. Teaching as a Profession 1 introduces the influence of educators, the variety of careers in education, and the importance of diversity in the classroom while emphasizing employability skills. Teaching as a Profession 2 expands on these foundations by covering educator credentials, professional responsibilities, and the use of theories and strategies to develop inclusive and engaging lesson plans. Teaching as a Profession 3 evaluates advanced competencies in classroom management, assessments, technology integration, and professional ethics. Together, the three certifications validate readiness for continued study in education and provide a foundation for successful careers in teaching.
